HOLD BUSINESS SESSION

The general conference committee of the Seventh Day Adventist Church will hold two business meetings in the Second Seventh Day Adventist Church, Twelfth and M Streets, today. There will be preaching at 7 o'clock in the evening.

After attending Sabbath school at 10 o'clock yesterday morning and listening to an instructive sermon by Elder I. H. Evans, treasurer of the general conference committee, at 11 o'clock, the Adventists rested until 7 o'clock last evening, when the business session was begun. Discussion on work in Washington and the Takoma Sanitarium, which was continued from Friday's sessions, occupied the time of the delegates.

* SUBMITTED to the Jury of the Paris Exposition, 1900, two of Chris. Xander's proprietary beverages, one Cordial and one bitters, were honored with medals. As beverages of universal use, both have for years been acknowledged as of supreme quality. Their chief merit, however, consists in their medicinal virtues. They are true health tonics that cannot be confused with patent medicines and hardly require advertising. Their inherent excellence popularized them and caused the demand that has reached vast proportions. One of these of great importance at the beginning of the cold season is

Chris Xander's Melliston Wild Cherry Cordial,

$9 per doz., 75c bottle, 50c full pt.

It is the enemy to lung affections, in a pleasant manner, conquers coughs and colds rapidly and helps convalescents. Wise physicians do not hesitate to prescribe it even in cases of infants' whooping cough (of course, in diluted shape).

The other is efficient in malarial complaints, both as a preventive in unhealthy locations and as a curative, namely:

Chris Xander's Stomach Bitters.

$9 doz., 75c bottle, 50c full pt. As a corrector of faulty digestion it ranks at least with the best bitters, that are made popular through copious advertising. Many patrons assert this fact. Both the above articles should have a place in the family chest for emergencies.
